

Folusho E. Ogunfeditimi, DM, MPH, PA-C, DFAAPA
President

Folusho E. Ogunfeditimi is president and chair of the American Academy of PAs. His involvement in AAPA dates back to PA school when he originally joined as a member of the Student Academy. Most recently, he served on several AAPA committees including the Title Change Advisory Council, the Commission on Research and Strategic Initiatives, and the Commission on the Health of the Public. He is a founding leader of PAs for Global Health, as well as a past president and past chief delegate of the African Heritage PA Caucus. He also served as AAPA's representative to the AMA's RVS Update Committee (RUC) Health Care Professional's Advisory Committee (HC-PAC).

Ogunfeditimi has 23 years of administrative and clinical experience in healthcare administration and urology. His experience spans both inpatient hospital administration and outpatient clinical practice management, while providing senior leadership and oversight to PAs, NPs, and physicians. He is currently the administrator of practice management for Florida Health Care Plans (FHCP). He is also adjunct faculty at Butler University's Doctor of Medical Science program. Ogunfeditimi has strong interest in PA value, productivity, and revenue generation and is well published in national peer-reviewed journals on these topics.

Ogunfeditimi graduated from Howard University in Washington, D.C. and earned a master's in public health from the Medical College of Ohio. He also earned a Doctor of Management in organizational leadership from the University of Phoenix. As an American-born, Nigerian-raised healthcare provider, he brings a global experience to the leadership team of AAPA. He lives in Deland, Florida and enjoys travelling with his wife, golfing, and ending the day with a glass of wine and a good book.