

Daniel Pace

Vice President of Education

Daniel Pace, B.S., CCMEP is Vice President of Education at the American Academy of Physician Assistants. He joined AAPA in the Fall of 2006, shortly after graduating from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill with degrees in Math and Philosophy. Daniel's primary responsibilities at AAPA include the AAPA CME accreditation process, AAPA's Category 1 CME credit system, developing solutions for the new NCCPA certification maintenance requirements, and Learning Central — AAPA's new online professional development home for PAs. Daniel is passionate about helping PAs improve patient outcomes through continuing professional development.

Daniel is a member of both the American Society of Association Executives (ASAE) and the Alliance for Continuing Education in the Health Professions (ACEHP) and has been actively involved with both organizations for the past seven years, volunteering on various committees and presenting numerous educational sessions at ASAE and ACEHP annual conferences. He has participated in leadership development programs with both ASAE and ACEHP and recently completed an AAPA leadership rotation developing AAPA's 2013-2015 strategic plan. Daniel recently earned the Certified CME Professional (CCMEP) credential and is working towards the Certified Association Executive (CAE) credential.
