Founded in 1968, the American Academy of PAs (AAPA) is the national professional society representing PAs (physician assistants). It represents a profession of more than 131,000 PAs who practice in every medical setting in all 50 states and the District of Columbia.

PAs are medical professionals who diagnose illness, develop and manage treatment plans, prescribe medications, and often serve as a patient’s principal healthcare provider. With thousands of hours of medical training, PAs are versatile and collaborative. PAs practice in every state and in every medical setting and specialty, improving healthcare access and quality. AAPA advocates and educates on behalf of the PA profession and is committed to:

- Equipping PAs for expanded opportunities in healthcare;
- Advancing the PA identity;
- Creating progressive work environments for PAs; and
- Fostering AAPA organizational effectiveness and sustainability.

- State & Federal Service Chapters
  - Chartered chapters of AAPA in every state, one U.S. Territory, and the District of Columbia. There are also five federal service chapters.

- Specialty Organizations
  - Specialty organizations support AAPA’s knowledge base regarding medical specialty practice issues. More than 20 organizations strengthen the PA profession through their specialized medical knowledge and interactions with their medical and professional counterparts. These relationships allow specialty organizations to partner with AAPA to address challenges with reimbursement, clinical practice, regulation and other matters.

- Special Interest Groups
  - Special interest groups (SIGs) are informal groups composed of individuals sharing a common goal or interest. SIGs are recognized and approved by AAPA's Board of Directors. AAPA currently recognizes 20 SIGs including PAs in Obesity Medicine, PAs in Pain Medicine, and more.

- Caucuses
  - A caucus is composed of individuals who share a common goal or interest related to healthcare access or delivery. AAPA currently recognizes eight caucuses including PAs for Global Health, PAs for Latino Health, and more.
