

Lauren Bates-Rowe is the Vice President of State Advocacy and Outreach for the AAPA. A seasoned government affair professional with expertise in both lobbying and policy, Ms. Bates-Rowe has extensive experience representing health care professionals.

Most recently, Ms. Bates-Rowe served as the Vice President of Health Policy for the Medical Society of Virginia. In this capacity, she led the development of legislative and regulatory advocacy on behalf of the physicians and physician assistants of Virginia. Her areas of expertise include scope of practice issues, the opioid epidemic, insurance reform, and most recently served on numerous state workgroups responding to COVID-19. In addition, Ms. Bates-Rowe oversaw the organization's practice services department and managed governance reform.

Ms. Bates-Rowe has successfully advocated at both the state and federal levels, representing a wide variety of health care professionals on behalf of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, the Association of Women's Health, Obstetric and Neonatal Nurses, and the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons where she lobbied on the Affordable Care Act. She also has experience lobbying on behalf of patients in her work at the Alzheimer's Association.

Ms. Bates-Rowe received her undergraduate degree in economics from Hollins University.